

Baker Center Ambassadors

Interested in energy and environment? Global security? Leadership and government?

As a Baker Ambassador, students will be given the opportunity to bridge the gap between their student life and their involvement in the Baker Center and the wider community. This opportunity will be open to all UT students who have a passion for civic engagement, public policy, politics, government, and public service.

Event Developer/Hosts: Students will work before, during and after an event takes place to help with planning, promoting and make sure the event functions properly.

National Campaign for Civic & Political Engagement: UT is a member of this Harvard-led consortium, which focuses on political engagement, from research and promotion of voting, to educational programs for younger students.

Educational and Social Events for Baker Scholars and Learning Community: Help plan educational and social events for the Baker Center Living and Learning Community and Baker Scholars.

Howard Baker Public Policy Challenge: Students can participate or assist with this annual program and get hands-on experience in policy creation, development and implementation.
